CHOWAN, N. C., March 29, 1866.

THE SOUND.

This is a sheet of water sixty by twelve miles, bounded on the North side by the counties of Chowan, Perquimans, Pasquotank, Camden and Currituck, and on the South by Washington and Tyrrell, all of North Carolina.

Shut in by a great sand-bar on its seaward side, except by a small inlet, it has no tides—through it has its irregular rises and falls, which depend on the wind. A south-east wind drives the waters of the ocean through Ocracoke, Hatteras and New Inlets, and elevates, while an opposite wind lowers the waters. The waters have a yellow and turbid cast, varying in degree with the rains in the upper tributaries.

The trees, which line the opposite shore, are visible, presenting on the horizon a broad belt of green.

Unobstructed views, whether from the mountain, on the prairie, or on the sea-shore, have an interest separate and independent of the objects themselves, which may be embraced in the field of vision. There is an idea of vastness connected with such occasions which, to me, is a mental luxury, and for which I have so often longed in my four years' exile. The sound is the first sheet of water of any magnitude since my last view of the green waters of the Chesapeake and Atlantic, a short time prior to the evacuation of Norfolk. But to my subject.

THE FISHING SHORE.

On the line, perhaps a mile in length, are located ten windlasses, for the purpose of working the seines. Each is an upright cylinder, large at the lower end, to receive the rope as it is coiled around it, and pierced with two twelve feet levers; two mules at a lever, moving in a circle, work the levers.

CENTRE.

At the centre is a platform, with two slopes; the lesser, which is abrupt, touches the bottom of the water. On this upper declivity the seine is drawn and the fish deposited. Here are large sheds, under which the fish are assorted—the shad, rock and sturgeon from the herring, and the herring into male and female, the latter herring constituting the family roe and the former the gross herring.

CURING, &C.

The gross herring are stirred in large cradles with salt; the roe, however, is first relieved of its head, which contains the gills, by cutting its backbone at the base of the head, and of the gut, by a motion in a direction from the tail—the operation occupying but a moment. The herrings are placed next in hogsheads, here called stands, where they remain nine days; then removed to what is termed a box, where they drip, and lastly, to the barrel, in which they are packed for export. In packing, the abdomens are turned up, except at the top, where one row is reversed, and the last placed on the side. The whole barrel is now placed under a lever, where it is subjected to pressure, the effect of which is to increase the packing capacity of the barrel, and to exclude the air, one of the three elements whose united aid is essential to decomposition. The various fisheries of the sound and contiguous waters, excluding Pamlico, furnish about 50,000 barrels. Vast quantities besides, uncured, are consumed in the whole sound region, in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Petersburg, Richmond, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and even Boston, and in many other places, by means of a speedy transit of railroads and steamboats.

WORKING THE SEINE.

At the centre of the fishing line of the shore are two large flat boats, which contain about an equal portion of the seine. These shoot out from the shore, one in the wake of the other, until they reach a bush, which is planted about a mile and a half from the shore and nearly abreast of the centre, and part, each describing in opposite direction a quarter of a circle, as it moves towards the shore, and dropping the seine in the deep water. At each end of the seine is a staff, in mariner's phrase, is more properly a spar, and by means of ropes, formed into an angle, the seine in its whole width is to be equally drawn. Each staff has attached to it six hundred yards of rope. When the boats reach the two extreme windlasses, less than a mile apart, the ropes are fastened, each to its own windlass. At this point commences the hauling. Several hours elapse before the staff reaches the shore; and now the rope, which is fastened every few rods to the ground side of the seine, draws chiefly on that side, which counteracts any pressure the fish might exert for their escape. During the two or three hours the staff is reaching the shore the boatmen may sleep and eat. When the staff reaches the shore the boatmen return to their boats, one boat at each end of the seine, and spread the seine on the boats as the seine is drawn in. The rope, which is attached to the seine, is removed from windlasses more remote to those nearer the centre, until the seine is nearly in, when the ropes are run through pulleys, on each end of the centre platform or wharf, where two horses, one at each pulley, draws. At a little later, when the seine is near the platform, the men alone work the seine.

THE CAPTURE.

When the men alone work the seine, the seine is near the platform. Now the fish are seen swimming about in the arc of water in front. Great care is taken to draw the seine at the bottom without lifting it, some standing on it, while others are drawing. The ground-rope of the seine is gradually pulled up the lower declivity of the platform to the upper, where iron pegs are driven and fastened. Now the surface or cork line of the seine is drawn over on the platform, a process which empties the seine of its fish. The retreat of the fish is now cut off by planks, which are pinned up on the outer edge of the platform, while this small remainder of the seine is removed to the boats. The boats again move from the shore to set the seine, as already described. They make four hauls in a day of twenty-four hours; for, in the fishing season, there are no nights, and I regret to add, no Sabbaths.

THE SCENE AFTER THE CAPTURE.

The interest of the fishermen and spectator begins when the seine and platform make a segment of waters; for now the fish are seen.—When emptied on the platform—seventy-five feet in length by ten in width—a singular scene is presented. Ten thousand to one hundred thousand living fish are before you in one view, presenting a spectacle that cannot be imagined, still less described, in bright and prismatic hues, in every form of contortion that agony can assume, throwing the spray in every direction, beating the platform and each other, jumping and gasping until death closes on the scene, or the fishwomen have removed them.

REST.

There is no night or Sabbaths in fishing season, as I have said. The boatmen sleep and eat from the time of reaching shore to the landing of the staff; the fish assorters and cleaners, who are women, sleep and eat between one landing and the next, except the time employed in their work; the fish superintendents and clerk have their intervals, when they may snatch a few hours of rest. But rest when night comes, at one interrupted period, or in one solid day when Sabbath returns, is a stranger to the fishermen during the fishing season.

TIME OF SHAD FISHING.

This commences in February and ends about the first of May, in the Albemarle waters.

HERRING.

This commences in March and ends about the 1st June.

STURGEON.

This commences later.

SEINE AND NET FISHING.

The seine encloses the fish, as has been described, the net fishing entangles the fish in in its meshes.

To the intelligent general reader a net and seine are synonym; here, there is a technical and practical distinction.

In net fishing the net is tied at each end to stakes, planted in the water, if in deep water; or on the banks of a stream is only 15 or 20 feet wide. Each net is a rod or more in length, and from one to many are used by the same fisherman.

At regular intervals the fisherman visits his nets in a boat, removing the fish from the meshes as he moves along his line of nets, and again dropping them; or, if he wishes to mend or untangle, he takes up each net and fish together. In this case he dries his nets before setting them.

Different men furnish each a net or more to a party, who devote themselves principally to the business, and receive a share of the fish.

The seine owner must be a rich man; the net owner may be very poor or rich.

MANUFACTURE OF NETS AND SEINES.

Everybody in this country, man, woman and child, I had almost said, understand the art of making them. The material, thread or twine, is usually bought. In making nets they adapt the mesh to the size of the fish to be caught; as, for example, a shad net is made upon a five inch gage. Long may the art live—and I hope that the day is not distant when not this art only, but every other that will render this people and the South generally independent, will flourish. To return:

THE SPAWNING.

The shad now keep in deep water, whether they remain in the sound or ascend the rivers. About the last of April they spawn and soon afterward leave these waters.

The spawn, when thrown from the fish, presents, on the water, to the eye a jelly-like substance, which is dotted over with the eggs.—The jelly seems to serve as anchor to fix the eggs to its locality, as a float to keep the eggs on the surface, where they may receive the sun's rays, and as a non-conductor to guard against sudden transition of temperature, while they serve as accumulators of heat during the day, with which they part slowly at night.

The locality for spawning is always fresh water. They follow the main river, or its branches and sub-branches, to their sources, then the shores which are dotted with stumps, cypress knees, logs, and brush. Still waters, removal from the haunts of large fish, who would prey upon the spawn, abundance of animalcule, &c, for food for the future young shad, are, perhaps, the chief motives in choosing these localities; for, it must be understood, that fish also share in that love, which the human kind feel for its young.

PERIODICAL VISITS TO THE SHORE.

When they visit the shore for spawning, they have regular periods for returning. This occurs in one week. Wares are employed in these localities to entrap the shad. The wareman understands this habit, and, like the shad, return at the set time to his wares. This applies to the herring too. After spawning, the uterus, with eggs in it, is compressed to the width of a finger, and in thickness to a quarter of an inch.

ENEMIES OF SHAD AND HERRING.

The rock, perch, and the cat especially, follow in the path of the shad and herring, to devour their spawn. When the cat are caught they are found full of spawn.

CLASSIFICATION.

The shad and herring belong to Cuvier's second order of fish, the malcopterygii, and genus abdomnales.

SPECIFFIC DIFFERENCES IN SHAD AND HERRING.

I shall drop the scientific distinctions. There is a shad, which is called by several names: the nannie, the hickory and fore-runner. I like the last, because it promises something and gives exercise for hope. This shad is the first of his genus that appears.

There are two species of herring. One specific distinction of one is blue back, one of which is fat now, the other will be fat in May. We have, in our Norfolk waters, two species of trout, one blue back, which are fat at different periods.

THE DINNER.

I need not add, that I enjoyed a fish dinner on the shore: boiled rock and a stew of roe.—If you would most enjoy a fish dinner, eat the fish as they leap from the water into the cooking vessel. Respectfully, J. C. A.

SALISBURY BRASS BAND

REORGANIZED 1st January, 1866, on a larger scale than formerly, under the direction of its former tutor, W. H. NEAVE, who was also chief music writer and Band Teacher in Gen Lee's army. He will be assisted in leadership and direction by his brother, Ed. Neave, leader during the entire late war of Gen. Lee's best and most favorite band, viz: 4th N. C. The Band is composed of the best members of the old Band, together with the best members of several of the fine Bands trained by W. H. Neave, in camps, who have moved to Salisbury from all points in the State to follow their respective vocations and continue the study and practice of music. This Band will be a permanent institution for all State and festive occasions, and will equal the best to be found in the world, if sustained by those desiring a fine order of Brass and String music; if not, it must go down after this year.

W. H. Neave is also agent for the celebrated Dodworth Brass instruments, proved and warranted to him, and by him to others; also, the most pleasing, effective and popular Piano music, selected by his friends, H. B. Dodworth and Kent Botsford, New York. For beginners, medium players, and advanced musicians, no trash for either.

Music composed and arranged to order for Parlor, Orchestral and Brass Band use for any kind and number of instruments.

Salisbury has been selected for Musical Headquarters for its central position.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

The President's Proclamation.

From the telegraphic news of the Progress, of yesterday afternoon, we learn that the President's proclamation, declaring the Southern insurrection at an end, was published on yesterday.

The President urges that the Constitution provides for constituent communities only as States, and that they should be equal with all the other States in the Union, in all respects.

He declares the existence of standing armies, military occupation, martial law, military tribunals and the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus inconsistent with a state of peace, and contrary to the genius of the government. He further declares that the Southern States have given satisfactory evidence of their acquiescence in the results of the revolution and concede that each State ought to be an integral part of the United States.

The proclamation is the initiative evidently to further and more important measures.

The returns so far from the Connecticut election indicate the success of Hawley, the radical candidate.

As yet there has been no election in New Jersey. Mr. Scovel remains firm in his purpose.

We look for further dispatches from a friend in Petersburg, before closing our columns.

Security for the Future.

The Radicals, both in and out of Congress, both North and South, have one grand idea in connection with the subject of re-construction, which appears to have fixed itself permanently in their heads. It is that they must have security for the future good behavior of the Southern people. The most solemn oaths of fidelity are "whistled down the wind" as unmeaning and worthless. The evidences of cheerful submission to the constituted authorities, and dignified and perfect acquiescence in the verdict of arms, are flouted or ignored. The security demanded is of every conceivable description.—One wants negro suffrage, though it is difficult to perceive what effect that will have upon the loyalty of the whites. Another wants an irrepealable clause in the various State Constitutions prohibiting secession. Another wants a disfranchisement of all prominent participants in the late revolution; while still another prefers some other peculiar scheme of his own.

There is security, if any were needed, which the Radicals have never yet dreamed of, which would prove more potent and lasting than any of the petty devices upon the discussion of which so much time is squandered. That security can be best developed by kind treatment, equal laws and protecting care. Make the people of the South feel that they have equal rights, that the Government is a blessing, and not an instrument of oppression, that they are more prosperous and free in it, and better protected in their rights of person and of property, than they could be out of it, and they will fight to keep in, rather than conspire to get out. Nothing of this sort has yet been essayed by the Radical faction. Let them try it.

The Plot.

The Standard accuses our correspondent, "P. E. C.," of charging it with complicity in the assassination of Mr. Lincoln. "P. E. C." makes no such charge, but that the abuse of Mr. Lincoln, by the Standard, and its exciting attacks upon him, encouraged those who sought his life. If the Editor will look over the Standard files from 1861 to 1864, he will find Mr. Lincoln often called "Old Abe." The following, however, from the Standard of June 5th, 1861, is probably the particular part to which "P. E. C." alludes:

"It is said a plot has been formed in Washington to massacre Jefferson Davis. Who will plot for the heads of Abe Lincoln and General Scott?"

Gold closed, in New York, on the evening of the 31st., at 128. Cotton heavy, with sales of 1,000 bales at 40 @ 41 cents.

The Standard vs. Mr. Lincoln.

The Standard of yesterday says:

"We did full justice to Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson as long as we dared to attempt it."

Of course the Standard is the very paragon of truth and consistency. What it says above must of course not be disputed. It appears that during the war it did full justice to Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Johnson, as far as it dared to attempt to do it. Read the following and see what the Standard means by justice to Mr. Lincoln:

"When Abraham Lincoln flung away all legal and constitutional restraint, and assumed the prerogatives of a despot; sent forth his proclamation making an iniquitous, cruel and aggressive war upon the South, we could hesitate no longer. We felt that the last shred of our allegiance to the United States was broken, and that, henceforth and forever, our only allegiance was to our dear old commonwealth and the South."—Standard, May 29th, 1861.

"Oh Abram! Abram! after times will surely call thee Abram, the Fool. 1st. For thou upholdest the Government by undermining its foundations. 2nd. Thou supportest the constitution, by disobeying it thy self. 3rd. Thou continuest the Union by cutting it in two parts by the sword. 4th. Thou esteemest the Platform of thy own devising of more import and advantage than the platform of Washington,—the constitution of 1787."—Standard, July 31st. 1861.

"Mr. Lincoln was elected, and has proved himself a knave, fool and tyrant."—Standard, July 19th, 1861.

"The people of North Carolina are at war with Lincoln, a military despot, for the protection and maintenance of those very rights. We shall and will resist him with all the force and all the means God has given us.—Standard, June 19th, 1861.

"Trampled Maryland and insulted Kentucky will afford some idea of Lincoln's protection.—Lincoln is as wicked and as bloody a tyrant as the Emperor of Austria."—Standard.

Standard's Justice to Andrew Johnson.—See what justice it awarded to Andrew Johnson:

"Mr. Everett is the most elegant devil out of perdition. * * * Behold the trio! Andrew Johnson, John C. Breckenridge and Edward Everett.

> "Oh, for a tongue to curse the slave,
> Whose treason, like a deadly blight,
> Comes o'er the counsels of the brave,
> To blast them in their hour of might."

Standard, July 22, 1862.

"The day draws near for a decisive battle.—May God give our armies success. Andy Johnson made his escape from Tennessee, in a close buggy, with three armed guards. He ought to be caught ere he reaches Abram's bosom." Standard, June 26, 1861.

The State Library.

Our correspondent "P. E. C.," some days ago, intimated that objectionable copies of the Standard had been removed from the State Library. We knew nothing of the matter at the time. We have not seen, or had communication with, our correspondent. Of course, no one but the Standard saw in his statement any intimation that the missing files of the Standard had been stolen from the Library.

The following, we believe, are the facts: It will not be denied, that, during the late canvas for Governor, a highly respectable citizen of this city, whose object, perhaps, was to consult the files of the Standard, was refused admission into the State Library, by order of the Provisional Governor. It will not be denied that, since that period, persons who desired to consult the Standard files could not find in the Library certain portions of those files. It will not be denied, that, for some time after the present Librarian resumed his duties in that office, he could not find the entire unbound files, for the purpose of having them bound. It will not be denied that the entire files of 1863 were for sometime missing—that the former Librarian, when called upon, declared he did not know where they were. It will not be denied, that, recently, the present Librarian found the files of 1863 packed away in a box and placed in a position where it was difficult to find them.

Now our correspondent 'P. E. C.' we presume, simply meant that certain files of the Standard were removed from their ordinary and proper position and transferred to some other place where they could not be found. The facts show that they were thus removed or secreted. Who did it? Why was it done?

The Standard in a Rage.

Our neighbor is so confirmed in its habits that we concluded, some days ago, to turn it over to our correspondents, determined, as far as possible, to avoid all allusions to it. Our correspondents are responsible for what they write, and we hold ourselves responsible only to correct what we know to be erroneous in their statements. Of this the Standard has no right to complain. It has, for months, admitted into its columns, without comment, the most scurrilous and false statements in regard to the Sentinel and its Senior Editor. We have taken no notice of them. Our character is not in so delicate a position, as to throw us into a fever, when assailed, and hence we seldom notice the attacks of anonymous writers.

The truthfulness and reliability of the Sentinel, so mercilessly assailed, on yesterday, by the Standard, need no defence among respectable people. What we state, as matters of fact, we can prove, and we will acknowledge an error, when convinced of it. What our correspondents assert, we expect them to establish, or acknowledge their error.

RICHMOND PAPERS SUSPENDED.—The Richmond papers have all been suspended, and will not probably be issued for several days. The proprietors of the several journals decided to reduce the wages of their employees twenty per cent., to which the latter objected. In consequence of their refusal to work on these terms, the papers are compelled to suspend publication temporarily.

MADISON, Wis., Mar. 31.—The General Assembly to-day, after a protracted struggle, by the votes of every member present but one, resolved to instruct the Senators from Wisconsin to vote for the Civil Rights Bill over the President's veto. Before this resolution reached the Senate, that body had adjourned, or it would have passed with signal unanimity.

A Solution of the Problem.

A late French chronicle of the beau monde mentions a new Spring fashion. The women, it is said, propose to promenade in dresses having a train of more than four feet in length, which train is to be held up by a little negro boy!

The fair of New York, Boston, &c., are not slow in adopting the styles of their Parisian sisters, and we may accordingly expect soon to see the latest idea adopted in those thoroughfares of fashion. Who can say that herein may not be found a safe solution of the knotty problem, connected with the Freedmen? We would suggest emigration, at once, upon the part of such as are indolent or unwilling to labor. With the proceeds resulting from the employment of their interesting offspring, in the innocent and pleasant capacity referred to, they might live without work. The experiment is worth a trial.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, April 1.

TENNESSEE RESOLUTION.

It is reported that the Tennessee resolution will be introduced in the House soon after the Connecticut election is decided, provided the Hawley ticket is successful. This will be done as a reward to Maynard and Stokes, who are said to be stumping the State for that side. The Radicals are using them, and have, doubtless, promised to square the account by adopting this resolution, which will not be of much practical benefit to them, so far as obtaining their seats this session is concerned.

IT IS VERY IMPORTANT.

that every Senator and Representative should be in his seat next week, as the vote will probably be taken in the Senate on the Civil Rights bill, and the Dodge-Brooks case will be taken up in the House. The latter will attract almost as much attention as the former, especially among the people of Washington. They are largely in favor of Brooks, and will, no doubt, crowd the galleries of the House when the case comes up.

UTAH.

The House Committee on Territories have summoned Gen. Connor, commanding the Department of Utah, to appear before them and testify in regard to the condition of affairs in that Territory, especially in reference to the system of polygamy. It is intimated that some measure for its suppression will soon be introduced and urged in the House.

THE ESCAPE OF STEPHENS—HOW HE DEPARTED FOR THE UNITED STATES ON AN AMERICAN MAN-OF-WAR.

(From the London Shipping Gazette, March 16.)

Stephens is believed to have escaped from Ireland at last. The Cork Examiner states that it has excellent reason for knowing that he has left the country, and that previously to his departure he addressed the Fenians, recommending them to devote more attention to peaceful pursuits than they have given for some time past. His wife is understood to be in Cork, and to be ready to sail by the next steamer for America. Various rumors are afloat as to the means by which he made his escape. According to one report, he got away from Dalkey in a "hooker," while another account mentions that he is generally believed to have got away in an open boat while the American corvette Canandaigua was in the harbor of Dublin. It may be an uncharitable suspicion, but it is difficult to imagine that the vessel visited Ireland with an altogether friendly purpose. Her presence was decidedly objectionable in more ways than one—chiefly because it led the peasantry to believe that the American government intended to afford them substantial assistance, and so contribute to keep up the disturbed state of the country. Her crew also were almost entirely Irish; and considering how widely spread Fenianism is among the Irish in America, it is not saying too much to assert that the visit of the ship might well be construed into a declaration of the sympathy of the United States government with the Fenian movement. It is also very remarkable that the complete escape of Stephens should have become known only after the departure of the Canandaigua.

Release of Senator Yulee---The New Jersey Contest.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—I learn that ex-Senator Yulee, of Florida, who has been imprisoned in Fort Pulaski ever since May last, having been arrested in the South soon after the close of the war, has been ordered by the President to be released on parole. This is, of course, by the earnest intercession of friends. It is a fact that Mr. Yulee, though one of the retiring Senators from Congress on the secession of his State, was never in any way officially connected with the Confederate Government or its armies. It has been difficult, therefore, to discover the cause of his arrest and detention in the first place.

Considerable anxiety is felt here among the radical faction as to the prospective action of the New Jersey Legislature in regard to the election of a Senator to succeed Mr. Stockton. The position taken by Mr. Scovel, the President of the New Jersey Senate, was not anticipated by Senator Sumner and others, who evinced such indecent eagerness to get rid of Mr. Stockton. Mr. Scovel was here last week and in consultation with these Senators, and had they not been confident of his assistance in furthering their schemes, it is not probable their sense of right and justice would have been so blunted.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON ABROAD.—The speeches and messages of President Johnson are being translated into all the languages and published in all the journals of Europe, and are meeting with an amount of attention and discussion that has never been bestowed upon any political document in this generation. His Freedmen's Bureau veto message is less easily comprehended by the press of the continent than his message at the opening of Congress; but the President's arguments in favor of limiting the power of the Executive are applauded as reaching the heights of political virtue. In the French and other continental papers that arrived by the last steamer, President Johnson's speech of the 22d of February is reproduced, in various languages; and instead of ranting about the few personal remarks uttered by the President on that occasion, they find in its vigorous statements, determined purpose, magnanimous spirit, and independent position, everything to praise. In a few days they will have the second Presidential veto to study; and in the President's arguments on the rights of the States, and the limitation of Federal power, they will find political dogmas as important to the successful operations of a free government as any that could be uttered.—Baltimore Sun.

Tennessee Election.

NASHVILLE, March 31.—At the election for members of the Legislature in this district, Lewis, conservative, was elected over Brien, radical, by a majority of 1,800 votes.

For the Sentinel.

"Nil de Mortuis, Nisi Bonum."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—If the Ex-Provisional Governor were content to occupy in quiet the political grave to which the outspoken independence of the people has consigned him, and in which his friends, not reluctantly, left him, the aphorism at the head of this article would plead with us to leave him undisturbed in his repose, and we might be inclined to pity his faults, and drop a sympathizing tear over his misfortune; but, like some unshriven ghost, he still infests the scenes of his former struggles, and the evil spirit will not down. In consequence, charity to the living, and a due regard to our own protection, bid us beware of him, as the still living, breathing and would-be-powerful incarnation of political evil.

Unfortunately we, in our impotence, cannot, like the President, in his omnipotence, despise such disappointed placemen; our feebleness must guard against any enemy however inconsiderable. "Error is powerless where truth is left free to combat it," but truth is fettered in the arena where our struggle is to be fought out, and the Standard's calumnies find a ready lodgement in the ears of asectional Congress, already prejudiced against us. Powerless where it is known, it is still dangerous to our interests abroad. At home it is only the mouth-piece of the disappointed, broken down soldier of fortune. Abroad it would fain excite sympathy as the persecuted champion of the "unconditional Union party" of the State, a party which never had existence in point of fact, and which, in no case, could have been represented by Mr. Holden. It is time that this delusion were dispelled. It is time that the people of the North were made to understand that, if we have merited punishment, all our backs are equally worthy of the stripes. It was only when gangrene had attacked the vitals of the Confederacy, that "the straitest sect" was brought to life in the corrupted mass, and battening on its dead corse they waxed so fat and sleek—"reptiles that crawl where man disdains to climb."

Save in East Tennessee, there was no Union party throughout the Confederacy, until the too apparent signs of dissolution warned the rats to leave the sinking ship. There were men opposed to war in the abstract; men opposed to Mr. Davis; men opposed to conscription; men opposed to the tax in kind, and men opposed to the suspension of the habeas corpus privilege; but it was rare to find, even among those now claiming to be "unmistakably loyal," among the "last man and last dollar" patriots of Mr. Holden's class, a single individual who desired to see the Federal authority re-established over a subjugated South.

Many, indeed most of us, had labored for years to thwart the plans of Mr. Holden and his brethren of the Calhoun school. We recognized neither the right nor the necessity of secession. We loved the old Union and the old flag. We reverenced the memory of the patriotic sires, who bequeathed them to us. We would have contented ourselves with the shadow of constitutional liberty, though its substance might have been denied us. We thought it "better to endure the ills we had than fly to others that we knew not of;" but in an evil hour the issue was forced upon us by that party which rallied to the principles which Mr. Holden had been for years inculcating, and we accepted it. We cast our lot with our sister States. We plighted our faith to them; and though, in after times, gloom and despondency weighed heavily upon us, we could not listen to any counsels which would leave us bankrupt in honor.

Through the long night of sorrow and darkness, we watched anxiously for any gleam, which should herald the dawn of peace. Had the North extended the olive branch, we would have met her with outstretched arms. The election of McClellan would have been hailed with joy, as the precursor of an honorable compromise which should embrace all the States in rebellion. But this was not to be, and the re election of Mr. Lincoln was "confirmation strong as proof of holy writ," that, to the dominant party at the North, submission and subjugation were terms of like significance.

With this fact broad before us there was but one course left. We must stand or fall, with those to whom we had pledged our word, and who had stood shoulder to shoulder with us during the heat of the conflict. We could not ignominiously desert our allies in their hour of peril, to purchase for ourselves a dishonorable immunity from the penalties we had incurred. For this we are stigmatized as "latter day war men." Well, let us not quarrel with the term—it was earned by our devotion to an old fashioned sense of honor, which the ex-Provisional Governor, with his latitudinarian ideas of political morality, cannot properly appreciate; and it is a far nobler title than "Renegade."

Mr. Holden boasts of being a "latter day Union man." "When the proper time arrived, he struck for peace." What was "the proper time," it is hard to say. Mr. Holden, doubtless, recognized it when Sherman was thundering at the gates of Raleigh. Up to that period, he had never ceased claiming to be loyal to the Confederacy. At all events it never did arrive until Holden himself was subjugated, and I fancy this is the first recorded instance, where a would-be leader claimed credit for having less back-bone than his followers.

Worst of all, we are still disloyal! Now, without stopping to ask who made Mr. Holden "a ruler and a judge," let us settle the question: What is loyalty? Under a monarchical form of government, it consists in unswerving fidelity to the supreme authority; in ours, in conforming to a written Constitution and the laws made thereunder. So long as the Constitution remains unchanged, if there were but one man in the State, willing to comply with its provisions, he would be the only one truly loyal.—By this test we are willing to be judged—by this we have been judged; and the President has held that we are loyal, and fit to be entrusted with the reins of government. We have complied with all the requirements of the President, all the Constitutional enactments of the Congress. We have sworn allegiance to the Federal Government, and we will keep our oath, with as rigid a sense of honor, as we did to the dead Confederacy. Will Mr. Holden do as well?

But the ex-Provisional Governor would try us by another test. We refused to support him in his scheme of building up a Holden dynasty—we declined to elect to the highest office in our gift a man in whom hardly a respectable minority of the people has any confidence.

In 1864, Mr. Holden ran on his merits, and rallied around him all the weak-kneed and disaffected, and was beaten, as was never champion before. In 1865, he ran again. He had the prestige of being the President's appointee—he had all the power of the Provisional patronage. The venal were corrupted, the timid overawed. Threats of the Bastile and confiscation were thundered against the disaffected, by the Provisional organ, whose editors, by their acrimoniousness, and venomous attacks upon all prominent men who dared oppose the Governor's plans, made the Progress respectable.

All this was in vain. Corruption, proscription and trickery failed to accomplish the desired result. The people spurned him as unclean; and to make the defeat more bitter, the rebuke more pointed, it was universally conceded, that no man in the State, representing in good faith the principles which Mr. Holden professed to represent, would have met with the slightest opposition. It was his own course that beat him; and not even the great weight of the President's endorsement could save him from overthrow. Without this, and without the Provisional pap, he could not have rallied a corporal's guard around his standard.

Among his firmest supporters, it was common to hear one say: "I have no confidence in Mr. Holden, but I shall vote for him, lest a greater evil may befall us."

We, "the disloyalists," however, took a different view of the matter. We were anxious to resume our normal relations to the government, which we had just sworn to support. We were anxious to justify the good feeling which the President had manifested for us, and the confidence he had reposed in us; but with all deference to his opinion, we felt that we knew Mr. Holden better than he did, or could. The old maxim, "falsum in uno, falsum in omnibus," made us fearful of entrusting our all to the hands of one, who had been "tried in the balance and found wanting;" and we elected a man whose honesty and integrity of purpose, as well as his noted Union proclivities, presented a noble contrast to the tergiversation and inconsistency of his opponent.

How has the result proved the wisdom of our choice! Already is Mr. Holden preparing to throw himself into the arms of the enemy, denouncing one-half of the President's supporters at the North as "copperheads," "disloyalists" and "secession sympathizers." "His man Friday" has been on a scout around the camp of the Philistines, and reports that the President is in a hopeless minority, and that no party based upon opposition to the Republicans can possibly stand.

There is no opposition to the President's policy in this State, except among those whom Mr. Holden has gathered around him, and to whom he has promised to unfold a plan, which shall "sweep the State like a whirlwind."—What the plan is, we can see foreshadowed in the Radical press, to take form in a reorganizing convention of "the unmistakably loyal, without respect to color." In such a Pandemonium, the ex-Provisional would be at home.—

How the President will tolerate the attempt to tear down the work of his hands, we can afford to wait for time to determine; and we can wait hopefully for that other time, when we shall be permitted to close finally the Ex-Governor's political grave, and inscribe over it, in a classic phrase, his well-earned epitaph: "Auagespielt."

VAURIEN.

"When Virginia seceded * * we went reluctantly and sadly with our State, but with the fixed determination to avail ourselves of the first suitable opportunity to strike for peace."

Standard, April 3, 1866.

"As soon as Lincoln called for troops to make war on the South, we denounced him as a usurper, and turned our back on the old Union without end! We did this, too, with the most entire consistency, for WE HAD ALWAYS HELD THAT THE STATES HAD A RIGHT TO SECEDE FOR CAUSE,"—Standard, Aug. 1st, 1861.

"We believe that the people of North Carolina are, of all the Confederate States, the most united in their determination to resist the Northern government to the last extremity.—They counted the cost before they commenced the work of independence. They knew that the war would come; but they did not shrink from it in defence of their rights. They have been free for eighty years, and, by the blessing of God, they will remain free or die in their tracks. They will make no compromise with the North—they will never cease to fight as long as a federal soldier is on Confederate soil—they will agree to no terms which will not permit Maryland, Missouri, and Kentucky deliberately to decide their own destiny; and they will accept nothing from the North but the fullest and most unqualified acknowledgment of the independence of the Confederate States."

Standard, July 1, 1862.

"Mr. Lincoln may call, but North Carolina will extend no aid to him in any effort to coerce the Confederate States. The soil of North Carolina must not be polluted by the tread of armed men sent to make war on the Confederate States."

The Standard of the 17th, containing the above, was issued before the Register of the same date was issued, and before the reply of Gov. Ellis refusing troops, was printed—thus placing me ahead of both the Register and the Governor in defying and denouncing Lincoln. And in every subsequent number of the Standard, I have occupied the strongest Southern ground, and called on the people of the State to rally, as one man, in defence of their rights and liberties.—W. W. Holden's address to people of Wake, May 11, 1861.

THE SOUTH GOING NORTH.—We are more than pleased to learn that our enterprising neighbors, Messrs. Wm. B. Smith & Co., of the Southern Field and Fireside Publishing house, last week received large orders for "Nameless," Mrs. Downing's charming novel, and the volume of poems, "Mosses," from the pen of Mrs. Mary B. Clark. The orders emanate from leading houses in the cities of Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. Such a thing was never before heard of in the history of typology at the south, and is alike complimentary to publishers and authoresses.—Progress.

CITY AND STATE ITEMS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Mayor Harrison gives notice of an election, on the 23d inst., upon the question of accepting or rejecting the new city charter.

A general meeting of the Stockholders of the Bank of Cape Fear will be held in Wilmington, on the 8d proximo. Business of much importance is to be considered.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—Rev. Mr. Rumple, of Salisbury, will assist the Pastor of the Presbyterian Church in this city, in conducting a series of meetings, the present week, in that congregation. Services every evening to commence at 8 o'clock.

WAKE SUPERIOR COURT.—This tribunal is still in session. The charge of Judge Fowle to the Grand Jury is deservedly spoken of in terms of high commendation. On yesterday, one offender (colored) was convicted of larceny, and publicly whipped. The docket is full, and the prospect is that other evil-doers will share the same fate.

HON. S. S. BAXTER.—We were in error in stating on yesterday, that this gentleman, now in this City, had been a Judge of the Court of Appeals of Virginia. He was never a Judge, but for seventeen years ably filled the office of Attorney General of that State.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.—The regular Quadrennial Convention of the Christian Church in the Southern States will commence at Mount Auburn, Warren county, on the first Wednesday in May next.

RAILROAD MEETING AT WELDON.—There was a Convention of railroad gentlemen at Weldon, on Wednesday last, who arranged a new schedule and ticket from Baltimore to Kingsville and Charleston, which goes into operation next week.

THE WELDON BRIDGE.—We noticed, on yesterday, the completion of this important structure. It is said to be a magnificent and substantial work, 1760 feet in length, and 60 feet above low-water mark. Under the management of Samuel T. Hand, Esq., master-builder, it has been constructed at less expense than any other work of the kind in the country, costing about $65,000—$5,000 of this for masonry. Notwithstanding many difficulties, such as delay in getting timber, transportation, &c., it has been built in seventy-five working days.

The 5TH. U. S. REGULAR CAVALRY, which has been stationed at Salisbury for some time past, has left.

The "OLD NORTH STATE," published at Salisbury, under the Editorial auspices of Hon. Lewis Hanes, has made its appearance. The first number is beautiful in typography, and its original and selected matter bears the impress of Mr. Hanes' vigorous mind and good taste. We wish him great success, which he will doubtless well deserve. We have heretofore published the prospectus of the paper.

WIL. & WELDON R. R.—The Wilmington Dispatch says that this road now runs two trains daily. They have all new and comfortable cars. To the express train is attached a sleeping car, which is fitted up in the most complete, spacious and elegant style, with bunks and state rooms, all mirrored, carpeted and curtained. In these handsome saloons are washing and dressing rooms; indeed, everything that can render comfort to the traveler.

A SOLDIER SHOT.—We learn, from the Salisbury papers, that a soldier was shot and instantly killed at the Railroad Depot in that place, on Sunday last. His arrest had been ordered by the military authorities for some offence, when, resisting, he was shot by the guard.

COTTON STEALING.—The Charlotte Democrat says that there is general complaint among the country people in that section about cotton stealing. It causes great annoyance, as well as material loss to farmers. The way the rogues operate is this: they steal a bale of cotton, tear off the bagging, and then bring it to town and sell it as loose cotton. This is to prevent it from being identified. Some plan must be adopted to prevent the sale of loose cotton by irresponsible parties; and the first man caught buying stolen cotton, or having stolen cotton in his possession, ought to be prosecuted to the utmost extent of the law.

"THE SIAMESE TWINS, residing in North Carolina, now sign their names "Chang and Eng Bunker," adopting as the surname of their family the family name of the sisters they married."

The above paragraph, which we copy from an exchange, is a long ways behind the times, as well as in fault as to the main statement.—The twins have borne the surname of Bunker for many years; having adopted it long before they were married, in compliment to a Mr. Bunker, of New York, who befriended them on their first arrival in this country, and who for a long time attended to all of their business.—Each of the twins, for several years, were subscribers to the Republican—one taking the daily, the other the tri-weekly edition, and their papers were directed respectively to Chang and Eng Bunker, Mt. Airy, N. C.—Lynchburg Republican.

The wheat prospect in East Tennessee is very promising.

Among the recent converts at a Methodist revival was Barnum's giant.

A man who got drunk at an election, said it was owing to his efforts to put down "party spirit."

The recent severe weather is said to have entirely killed the peach and apple crops of Tennessee.

In Philadelphia there are upward of four thousand places where ardent spirits are sold, many of them without license.

PRESIDENTS PROCLAMATION.

No further action on the Veto.

Connecticut Election.—A small majority claimed for Hawley.

We are greatly obliged to our friend Crutchfield, for the following dispatch. We stop the press to furnish it to our readers.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE SENTINEL.]

PETERSBURG, April 3.

The President's Proclamation was issued today. It recites former proclamations and also quotes resolutions passed by each House of Congress, July 1861, viz:

Resolved, That the present deplorable civil war has been forced upon the country by the Disunionist of the Southern States now in revolt against the Constitutional Government, and arms around the Capitol, that in this National emergency, Congress banishing all feelings of mere passion or resentment will recollect only its duty to the whole country.

Resolved, That this war on our part is not waged in any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation, nor for the purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights of established institutions in those States, but to maintain and defend the supremacy of the Constitution and to preserve to the Union all its rights, dignity and equality of the States unimpaired.

Resolved, That so soon as those objects are accomplished, the war ought to end.

Those resolutions though not joint or concurrent in form, are substantially identical, and as such may be regarded as having expressed the sense of the Congress upon the subject to which they relate.

There now exists no organized armed resistance of misguided citizens or others to the authority of the United States in the States of Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Florida, and the laws can be sustained and enforced therein by proper civil authority, State and Federal, and the people of said States are well and loyally disposed, and have conformed or will conform their legislation to the condition of affairs growing out of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting slavery within the limits of the jurisdiction of the United States.

For these and other reasons the President proclaims and declares that the insurrection which existed in the above named States at an end, and henceforth should be so regarded.

The Senate has taken no action on the President's veto message yet

The vote for Governor of Connecticut is very close and doubtful. A dispatch from New York, says, up to the hour of midnight, returns have been received from 75 towns and cities, which give English 533 majority over Hawley. All the larger cities of the State have been heard from, and it is claimed that the remaining towns will overcome the above majority from three to four hundred. CRUTCHFIELD.

Why is not Jeff. Davis Tried or Liberated?

We have the legendary punishment of the "iron mask" as an old French mode of keeping out of sight or in perpetual seclusion a person whose liberty was dangerous to a particular dynasty. That tyranical mode might have operated well enough a century or two ago, when politics and kingdoms were founded upon different bases than any they are in this period. Two hundred years since it might have been expected that a rebel like Jeff. Davis, who had been the author of such bitter hostility to the government, and the quiet witness of the cruelties that marked the bloody career of the Southern rebellion, would have had his head chopped off at the shortest notice, and his bodily sufferings speedily ended. But it seems that we are permitted to see in this enlightened era an instance of the refinement of barbarity for political offences which never characterized the dark ages. Jeff. Davis is, as it were, in a living tomb. The President is blamed for allowing him to be kept there; but, it is not the President's fault. The fault lies with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who declines to try Davis for high treason, because he is at a loss where to try him so as to secure his conviction. He will not try him in Virginia, because he doubts whether a jury can be empanelled who can be made to believe that the accused is or was a traitor. He will not try him in a loyal State like Pennsylvania, where overt acts of rebellion were committed with the connivance of Davis, because he is afraid that, being so far removed from the actual theatre of the rebellion, a jury may be moved to clemency. Congress fails to provide a solution for this dilemma, and in the meantime the prisoner lies incarcerated. In the hands of the Chief Justice or of Congress rests the responsibility of obtaining a decision in the case of Davis. That he is entitled to a trial is acknowledged on all hands, even by the most radical. That he must be eternally imprisoned—in other words, made to wear perpetually an iron mask, according to the fashion of feudal times, without a trial, is a stigma upon our republican institutions. Let Jeff. Davis be tried somewhere in the District of Columbia, in the Capitol, if the Chief Justice cannot find a more convenient or suitable place—or let him be liberated under a proclamation of general amnesty. We believe the republic need have no further fears of such men.—New York Herald.

The prospect for fruit in Wisconsin was never better. An examination of the buds has shown that the frost did no harm.

The Nashville papers are full of news items pointing to great social disturbances throughout Tennessee.

No wonder. Brownlow would provoke a row in Eden.

Prices are still falling. "A love of a bonnet can now be bought for forty dollars.—N. Y. Mercury.

Somebody told us the other day that one-half of "the lawyers live without a cause and die without effects."

A Remarkable Case.

DISEASE IN WHICH THE LUNGS AND THROAT ARE INVOLVED.—Mrs. Phebe Perkinson, Petersburg, Va., (Aug. 26, 1855,) says: "I hereby certify, that two years ago last June, I was afflicted with a disease commonly called the Breast Complaint, the pain and weakness in the breast continued to increase so that I could not bear my clothes fastened on me for the space of two years; I found great difficulty in breathing; a general debility prevailed over my whole system—so much so, that I could not walk up the steps without drawing myself up by the banister; had a continued hacking cough, which distressed me greatly, four times during my illness had Hemorrhage of the Lungs. All medical treatment failed to afford me relief; it was the opinion of my friends that I must die with the consumption; I was advised to use the SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS: after using three boxes, strictly according to directions, I find myself in the enjoyment of perfect health; I have a good appetite, have become as fat and as I ever was—sleep sound and pleasant, and can perform any duty with as much strength and vigor as I ever did. They certainly have acted like a perfect charm on me."

We do not underbid our neighbors, but work as low as any, and will deliver as promptly as the best, and claims for loss or damage will be adjusted at once, if presented according to our rules.

CLEANSE THE BLOOD.

With corrupt, disordered or vitiated Blood, you are sick all over. It may burst out in Pimples, or Sores or in some active disease, or it may merely keep you listless depressed and good for nothing. But you cannot have good health while your blood is impure. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA purges out these impurities and stimulates the organs of the body into vigorous action, restoring the health and expelling disease. Hence it rapidly cures a variety of complaints which are caused by impurity of the blood, such as Scrofula, or Kings' Evil, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores, Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, St Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Cancer or Cancerous Tumors, Sore Eyes, Female Diseases, such as Retention, Irregularity, Suppression, Whites, Sterility, also Syphilis or Venereal Diseases, Liver Complaints, and Heart Diseases. Try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and see for yourself the surprising activity with which it cleanses the blood and cures these disorders.

During late years the public have been misled by age bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence bitter disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself has become synonym us with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound "Sarsaparilla," and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it. We not only assure the sick, that we offer them the best alterative which we know how to produce, and we have reason to believe it is by far the most effectual purifier of the blood yet discovered by any body.

Ayers Cherry Pectoral is so universally known to surpass every other remedy for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease, that it is useless here to recount the evidence of its virtues. The world knows them.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by Williams & Haywood, P. F. Pescud, Raleigh, N. C., and Dealers generally.

LIFE INSURANCE NOTICE.

THE old and well established

Ætna Company, of Hartford,

Offers superior inducements to all who wish to provide for family or friends.

All losses are promptly paid. No case of litigation has ever occurred with this Company. With assetts of $2,300,000, it offers to receive one half of the premium in a note and half in cash, and, after the second year, to credit each customer with the dividends of the Company, which are now 50 per cent. With a small outlay, $5000, or $10,000, or $20,000, may be secured to the family after their earthly providers are taken away. What father or husband would not feel thankful on his dying couch, that he had availed himself of every proper means to place those nearest and dearest to him, above the pinchings of want, and a life of dependence upon friends or charity? 8 819 policies have been issued from the office ending Jan. 15, 1866. The total income for the year 1865 was $1,683 339 57; total disbursements $527 805 24, leaving a balance to surplus fund of $1,155,244 33.

In Raleigh, a large number have liberally responded and promptly acted in this matter; yet many delay, and may wait until it is too late. A man in this city lately left his place of business for his evening meal, well and healthy, but never reached that home except as he was carried there to die. Had that man taken the advice of the Agent, he might have left $5000 to minister to the necessities of a sorrowing family. Delays are dangerous, procrastination destructive. But one says, "If I only had confidence in the Company that it would pay, I would insure." Well, it never has failed to pay, and to-day is more responsible than ever before. It is patronized by some of the most sagacious minds in the land—men competent to detect and expose any deception if it existed.

CIRCULAR.

The Co-partnership of G. W. DEEMS & C. F. DEEMS has been dissolved, by mutual consent, and the business of manufacturing the Southern has gone into the hands of G. W. DEEMS, the discoverer, who has removed to Baltimore, Md., where he can have access to the purest and best Medicines, on the most favorable terms. He will always keep on hand a large supply, and will sell to his customers, wholesale and retail, at the shortest notice.

Where these Pills are known, especially in the Southern States, where they have been circulated so extensively, they need no recommendation—their merits are so well known by their results.

We thank our customers for the liberal patronage given us heretofore, and hope they will continue to favor us by sending their orders to G. W. DEEMS, No 28 South Calhoun Street, Baltimore, Md., where they will be promptly attended to, the cash accompanying the orders. Price 30 cts. per box; $2.50 per dozen, and a liberal discount to dealers.

For sale by P. F. PESCUD, and WILLIAMS & HAYWOOD.
